Unit Testing – Robot Movement

The MoveBot.cs file was used to program and test the robot's movement from one part of the office to another (without perfect collision avoidance). An array of points were defined for the lobby, the mailroom, and six randomly chosen cubicles. Here, we see the robot (represented by a white cube) moving from the lobby (starting point) to the destination cubicle.